CAT{Y0u-@v3-SolV3-tHe-mYst3ry}

What do you mean, you think the evidence is really there?

You'll have to take note of my writing skills first.

Dr. REDACTED, a renowned oceanographer, was excitedly scanning the sonar images from her research submarine. After years of studying Plato's texts and geological analyses, she was convinced she had finally located Atlantis in the Arctic Ocean.

"Look!" she exclaimed to her team. "These geometric structures can't be natural. This has to be Atlantis!"

They dived deep*l*, revealing the outlines of a vast underwater city. Columns and domes emerged from the mud, seemingly confirming their discovery. Emilie, euphoric, immediately contacted the media. "We've found Atlantis!" she announced to the world.

However, as the team explored the ruins further, they made a surprising discovery. Inscriptions on the walls were not in ancient Greek, but in modern ~~Penguin~~ English.

Perplex*ity*, Émilie investigated further. Then she discovered the truth: what they had found was not Atlantis, but the remains of an abandoned underwater amusement park, built in the 1990s and sunk by a storm before it opened.

Red with shame, Émilie had to face the media to rectify her error. Her quest for Atlantis had become a lesson in scientific humility, reminding us of the importance of rigor and caution in archaeological research.

Ps: Any similarity with any element would be fortuitous. Pps: Any resemblance to a text written by a certain AI ~~quoted in the text~~ and a certain translator ~~quoted in the text~~ would also be coincidental. Ppps: I forgot to tell you where to find this writing talent, so here it is: Pppps: Don't think that the whole escape game was made by AI (I swear), just know that the chall maker was inspired by ~~his distorted mind~~ nothing in fact, to make your task difficult \Re Ppppps: Non mais ho, I've just put the RP in the garbage can, so I'll start again: "Don't think that the whole escape game was made by AI (I swear), just know that hackers have a lot of imagination to create honey pots". P[…]s: Why do you keep reading that paragraph, I said Atlantis has never been found… So I have no proof and you've just wasted even more of your time ☺

PP[….]s: No, but how obstinate can you be… I said: T H E A T L A N T I S W A S N E V E R F O U N D

P[…]P[…][…]s: Life thanks you for your gift of <time to read this page> <second(s)/minute(s)/hour(s)/day(s)/week(s)/month(s)/year(s)...>

Zzzzzzzzzzzzz

Zzzzzzzzzzzzzzz

Zzzzzzzzzzzzzzzzzzzzzz

Zzzzzzzzzzzzzzzzzzzzzzzz

PROOF OR FAKE